	Lot # 261 - Large Format Color Transparency of Maison Coty with Star Pylon base. With its glittering surfaces and Hall of Perfumes, the Maison Coty Building was designed by Donald Deskey along with Architects John Walter Cross & Hamilton Hironimus to interest the female fairgoer. Located in the Community Interests Zone, this building was situated near the LIRR Gate at the rear of the Communications Building, where Main Street met Petticoat Lane. In the right foreground of this challenging and stunning composition is the base of the Star Pylon, which is seldom seen from such close vantage. At one hundred and thirty feet in height, composed of varnished Douglass fir with special concealed tubes for night illumination, it was the shining beacon of the Communications Zone. Careful eyes will note the presence of snow on the ground, indicating this is indeed a pre-fair image taken perhaps in February of 1939. Measuring just under 8" x 10", this is an original period large format vintage Eastman Kodak transparency, with the appropriate date code notches, perforations and markings for the time. Condition is superb with beautiful color retention as seen in the varnished fir and shining metal work. Reflections seen are from the back lighting - this transparency was photographed and not scanned, and will appear better than shown. Estimate: $ 25 - $ 35	$ 12
	Lot # 262 - Large Format Color Transparency of the Grand Central Parkway with the 1939 New York Fair under construction An incredible rare sight in full and vivid Eastman Kodak color - the New York World's Fair of 1939 during the final phases of construction, just prior to opening in April. Taken from Grand Central Parkway, the full spectacle of this vast wonderland can be appreciated in this magnificent transparency. The snow on the ground, ongoing construction and the finished Medicine mural by Willem de Kooning on Perylon Hall indicate a date after February, but well before opening. Work can be seen in progress on the Bridge of Wheels, as well as the very top of the deep blue Electrical Products Building at far right. The New York City Building (currently The Queens Museum), one of the last remaining structures from this exposition, can be seen on the left, with the two red Pylons of the Communications Building (nicknamed "the twin towers") rising in the distance. Of course, the towering Trylon and Perisphere, at six hundred and ten feet and at one hundred eighty feet respectively, dominate the scene. Measuring just under 8" x 10", this is an original period large format vintage Eastman Kodak transparency, with the appropriate date code notches, perforations and markings for the time. Condition is superb with rich and full color retention as shown with full blues, greens, yellows and reds in the mural detail. Reflections seen are from the back lighting - this transparency was photographed and not scanned, and will appear better than shown. Estimate: $ 25 - $ 35	$ 12
	Lot # 263 - Large Color Transparency of the Ford Interior "Cycle of Production" Shown here in a comprehensive and very rare color interior view is the Ford "Cycle of Production", centerpiece of the Industrial Hall inside the Ford Building in the Transportation Zone. Designed as a rotating display to illustrate the combination of science and industry, this impressive exhibit was one hundred feet in diameter, thirty feet in height and weighed over one hundred and fifty tons. It detailed twenty seven raw materials from their origin through refinement and ultimate use in a Ford automobile. This was accomplished using one hundred and forty two animated wooden figures, eighty-seven different models and over one hundred and thirty thousand moving parts - all of which floated on two pontoons in twenty thousand gallons of water. Measuring just under 8" x 10", this is an original period large format vintage Eastman Kodak transparency, with the appropriate date code notches, perforations and markings for the time. Condition is superb with rich and saturated full color retention as the detail shows, especially in this low light situation. Reflections seen are from the back lighting - this was photographed and not scanned, and will appear better than shown. Estimate: $ 25 - $ 35	$ 12
	Lot # 264 - Large Format Color Transparency of the Railroads on Parade with the base of the Corona Gate. An exceptional view one of the main entrances to the Rail Roads on Parade roundhouse, The West, with its beautiful and delicate mural above, along with an extreme detail of the base of Corona Gate North in the right foreground. The image was taken in the Transportation Zone at one of its two entrances. This sublime building was designed by Raymond Loewy with Outhwaite and Penhune; Eggers and Higgins served as architects. The snow indicates a pre-fair date in keeping with some of the other slides in this auction; perhaps March 1939. Measuring just under 8" x 10", this is an original period large format vintage Eastman Kodak transparency, with the appropriate date code notches, perforations and markings for the time. Condition is Superb with rich and saturated color retention as shown in the reds and strong blues in the detail provided. Reflections seen are from the back lighting - this transparency was photographed not scanned and will appear better than shown. Estimate: $ 25 - $ 35	$ 12

	Lot # 265 - Medium Format Color Transparency of The Hall of Nations looking toward the Food Zone. A superb overview of the Government and Food Zones at the New York World's Fair of 1939. Taken from the roof of the Romanian Pavilion looking south, the Hall of Nations, Lagoon, the Court of States and several buildings in the Food Zone can be spotted such as Kraft Foods and the tower of the Standard Brands building. The Distilleries facade, Petroleum, even DuPont and Westinghouse can be seen in the distance. To the left is the Russian Pavilion with its imposing stainless steel sculpture of "Joe the worker" and towering base of red gasgan marble. The presence of this building indicates the first season. The quality of this transparency allows incredible enlargement revealing these details and more from this most unusual vantage point. The large single flagpole is one of the two that remain on site to this day. It should be noted that its eagle finial is not of German origin but is simply a Deco rendering by Robert Foster, who did several pieces for this exposition, such as the figure of Mercury for the Ford pavilion. Measuring just under 5" x 7", this is an original period large format vintage Eastman Kodak transparency, with the appropriate date code notches, perforations and markings for the time. Condition is superb with very good color retention as shown in the reds of the flag and the greens near the Court of States. Reflections seen are from the back lighting - this transparency was photographed and not scanned. Transparency will appear better than suggested by these images. Estimate: $ 25 - $ 35	$ 12
	Lot # 266 - Medium Format Color Transparency of The Lagoon of Nations and Government Zone. An expansive view of the Lagoon of Nations and surrounding Government Zone at the New York World's Fair of 1939. Taken from the area of the Court of States looking north, this medium format transparency details the Lagoon with its water jets and apparatus for the nightly display. The evening show of water, light, fireworks, and flame in tandem with stereo music was most impressive and remains a fondly remembered feature of this great exposition. Across the fountains, the distinctive pavilions of Great Britain and Italy can be seen rising in the distance; to the right is the Hall of Nations leading to the United States Federal building. The amount of water emanating from the water jets shown here suggests the sheer volume and weight of water used in the daytime and night displays. Indeed, when operating at maximum capacity, twenty tons of water could be airborne. The flagpole at left bearing the United States flag is one of the two that remain in the park. Measuring just under 5" x 7", this is an original period large format vintage Eastman Kodak transparency, with the appropriate date code notches, perforations and markings for the time. Condition is superb with wonderful color retention as seen in the multiple delicate neutral shades of the foreign exhibit buildings. Reflections seen are from the back lighting - this transparency was photographed and not scanned. Transparency will appear better than suggested by these images. Estimate: $ 25 - $ 35	$ 12
